ing everything in detail from the elements of football to the highest form possible will be Coach Gorton's slogan for the rest of this week at least.

The scrubs have developed to such an extent that the varsity is unable to make substantial gains either by straight football or trick plays. Little use is made of the latter, however, as Gorton is of the old school, and has little faith in them. In the short scrim mages which have taken place during the week, the scrubs have repeatedly held the varsity for downs.

News has trickled into the cadet camp that Carolina, the cadeta next opponent, has developed the forward plass to a wonderful extent, and will depend upon it in the game Saturday. To offset this, the coaches have developed a well nigh impregnable defense for this particular sort of play, and there is little doubt but that the "Tarheels" will experience difficulty in making gains through that cauld be hoped for, but their could be hoped for, but their could be hoped for, but their

"The Silent Voice," the new play in which Charles Frohman will present that great actor, Otis Skinner, at the Academy of Music next Monday and Tuesday, is from the pen of Jules Eckert Goodman, author of "The Right to Live," "The Man Who Stood Still," "The Test" and "Mother."

The play, which is in four acts, is based upon a story by Gouverneur Morris, which appeared in one of the magazines a few years ago. It is said that the author, or adapter, of "The Slent Voice" has provided Mr. Skinner with a role of great possibilities. It is certain, in any event, that Mr. Skinner will not only take advantage of every possibility offered by the dramatist, but will bring his ripe experience and fine art to its elaboration.
